A DIABOLICAL PLOT.

We learn with regree, not unmingled with consternation, that there "is a conspiracy to sleaf the silver Republican State Convention of Colorado," The Denver Republican is authority for this disquieting statement. It is difficult to limigino how the world will manage to worry along without a silver Republican State convention, in a silver Republican State convention, in the convention on the state of the convention of the convention on the convention of the Republican State convention in a sever Republican State convention in a fire-Colorado. We trust that the bold by-gands who have planned this remarka-ble steni will take the feelings of the people of the United States into considration and pause before it is ever sidration and pause before it is ever-isstingly too late.

It is to be hoped that our esteemed contemporary is mistaken in its appro-heision of the danger. With prospertly sweeping across the country like a tidal wave, it is difficult to believe that any one could be so hard up as to take so unprofluble an affair as that referred to by the Deuver paper. This encour-ages us to hope that there has been an error somewhere. We cannot bring ourselves to the point of believing that the only silver Republican convention ourserves to the point of believing that the only silver Republican convention the American people can depend upon is in danger of being—purbaned. The matter should be investigated at once, however, and if it is shown that the danger really exists, prompt and drass measures should be taken to proteet this rara avis.

Success should build a magnificent temple upon the blackened ashes of temple upon the blackened ashes of failure and despair; fame may rear an imperishable monument upon the foun-dation where infamy once rested, and even national honor may be retrieved at the last moment and come out victorious when dishonor seems to hover in triumph over the field; but we only have onesilver Republican State conannot afford to take any chances with, it.

'Honor" caused Lieutenant Colone Henry to forge a letter that rivetted chains of crime upon an innocent man "Honor" then forced him to acknowledge the dreadful crime of which he was guilty. Yet again, "honor" raused him to commit suicide with "a clear conscience," But for the tragic event in connection with the Dreyfus case th whole affair would have the appearan-of a howling farce. In the meantime it is a pity that some man with a good grip on the English language has no teen fit to give us a definition of French

Perhaps if our esteemed French friends would only bear in mind that no one has been putting brick wall between them and Alsace and Lor raine for the past twenty years they might become a little more reasonable in their estimate of the Czar's peace proposition. Whatever may have been the motive that prompted the proclamation, it is safe to assume that it was not fear of the French military extab-
